TREVINO FOR WAR MINISTER

Private Telegrams From Sources Close to the Administration in Mexico City Intimate That Successor to General Blanquet Will Soon Be Named—Two Americans Kill Mexican Officer in Fight.

Washington, Sept. 8.—While no announcements were made at government departments of any change in the diplomatic side of the Mexican controversy two phases of the situation attracted much attention in official circles.

One was the published disclaimer on the part of Nelson O'Shaughnessy, American charge d'affaires at Mexico City, that any positive assurances had been given him of the intention of Victoriano Huerta not to be a candidate in the approaching elections.

The other was the receipt of private telegrams from sources close to the administration in Mexico City stating that General Trevino would be made minister of war soon, to succeed General Blanquet.

Mr. O'Shaughnessy's statement was not surprising here, as it had been pointed out by Washington officials that they had relied only on the repeated emphasis by Frederico Gamboa, Mexican minister of foreign affairs, of the statement that Huerta was ineligible by the constitution to succeed himself.

Believe Huerta Ineligible.

Mr. O'Shaughnessy incidentally disclosed the fact that the Mexican officials had supplemented the argument of the second Gamboa note calling attention to Huerta's ineligibility by verbal reference to that part of the note. This further encourages Washington officials to believe that the Huerta candidacy will not materialize.

The war department received a report of the killing of Lieutenant Acosta, a Mexican federal officer, by American immigration agents at El Paso, Tex. The report confirmed press dispatches of the incident. The affair is in the hands of the civil authorities at El Paso, though the immigration department here will make inquiry into the occurrence.

The state department announced that shipments of dynamite and other explosives needed for working the great mines in Mexico would be authorized as heretofore.

Literally interpreted President Wilson's Mexican message to congress indicated that the exportation into Mexico from the United States of explosives, even for industrial purposes, would be discontinued.

When representatives of the mining interests represented to the president, through the state department, however, that this would work a great hardship they were told that such a step was not contemplated.

MEXICAN OFFICER KILLED

Lieutenant Slain in Fight With Two Americans.

El Paso, Tex., Sept. 8.—Before Lieutenant F. Acosta, an officer in General Salazar's federal command at Juarez, crossed the Constantine street international bridge he remarked that he "was going to kill a Gringo."

He was killed by United States Customs Inspector T. F. Jonah and Immigration Inspector T. N. Heifron, after he had opened fire on them with a rifle on the American side of the international boundary.

He was shot through the mouth and arm and his horse, from which he had dismounted, was shot through the side. The American officers were uninjured.

HOPES TO ESCAPE PENALTY

Caminetti Thinks Higher Court Will Grant Relief.

San Francisco, Sept. 8.—F. Drew Caminetti believes he will escape the penalty of the Mann white slave law under which he and Maury I. Diggs were convicted in the United States district court.

"I believe we shall have no trouble in getting this verdict reversed by the United States court of appeals," he said.

This also is the view taken by William A. Heister, a member of the jury that convicted Caminetti, who now says he regrets having cast his vote for conviction.

TARIFF BILL TO

Senate Will Soon Act on Important Measure.

CURRENCY LEGISLATION NEXT

President Wilson and Democratic Leaders in Congress Apparently Agree Upon Plan to Adopt Certain Reforms Between Now and the End of the Next Regular Session.

Washington, Sept. 8.—The program of anti-trust railroad and currency legislation that congress faces for the ensuing twelve months has become fairly well outlined during the last week.

President Wilson and the Democratic leaders in congress apparently have agreed upon a plan that will bring all of the most important reforms contemplated by the Wilson administration within the period between now and the end of the next regular session of congress.

The tariff bill will be in the hands of a conference committee of the house and senate before the end of this week. Currency legislation already has forged to the front and promises to dominate congressional activity within a few days.

The prospects for immediate currency legislation in the senate have not improved during the last week, but supporters of the administration bill hold to the hope that by the time the measure has passed the house the senate committee on banking and currency will be ready to act.

In the meantime senate leaders are announcing that anti-trust legislation and further important amendments to the railroad laws are to be among the first and most important subjects taken up at the regular session of congress next December.

The tariff bill, as it passes the senate this week, will represent an average reduction of nearly 5 per cent from the rates of duty fixed in the bill as it originally passed the house of representatives.

With an increased representation on the joint conference committee the senate leaders hope to hold most of their reductions in the bill.

HOMESTEAD RULES AMENDED

Entrymen Permitted to Reduce Acres of Land to Be Cultivated.

Washington, Sept. 8.—The interior department has announced an amendment to its homestead regulations whereby an entryman may be permitted to reduce the area of land required to be cultivated. This reduction will be permitted where the land is found to be impracticable of cultivation or good only for grazing purposes. Personal disabilities or misfortunes after entry and actual settlement also will be deemed sufficient cause to grant reductions. No decrease will be allowed because of expense of clearing timber from the land.

The announcement was made from the summer White House by Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, through her secretary, Miss Isabella L. Hagner. This, the thirteenth wedding within the White House, is to be an afternoon affair. Although the desire of President Wilson has always been for extreme simplicity, it is understood he has given his consent to plans which call for an affair as brilliant as any that has ever taken place in the historic mansion at the nation's capital.

Searching parties had been hunting for the boys since they disappeared while on a hunting trip.

NEWSPAPER PIONEER DIES

Earl S. Goodrich Passes Away at Age of Eighty-seven.

St. Paul, Sept. 8.—Earl S. Goodrich, the publisher of the first daily newspaper in Minnesota, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Sterling McMasters, at the age of eighty-seven years. He had been ailing for many years and his death was not unexpected.

Mr. Goodrich came to St. Paul from New York in 1854 and immediately bought the Weekly Pioneer Press, which soon after turned into a daily. He was known as a forcible writer and had great influence in the early days, when he was prominent in state politics. It is said of him that he prevented the capital of the state from going to St. Peter, when a bill to that effect passed in the legislature of 1856 was stolen. Mr. Goodrich, it has been intimated, knew who took the bill and thereby foiled the efforts of St. Peter in their project.

ANNUAL MESSAGE

NO DEPARTMENTAL DATA.

None of the Large States Now Represented on Finance Committee, Owning, in Part, to Abrogation of Old Seniority Rule—May Raise Rank of Spanish Minister to Ambassador.

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.

Washington, Sept. 8.—[Special.]—If the president keeps up the practice of reading his messages to congress he will have to curtail the annual message at the beginning of the regular session. Those ponderous documents of 30,000 to 50,000 words, reviewing the doings of the federal government for a year, brimming with statistics about departmental matters, could scarcely be read by any one man. The clerks in both senate and house "spell" each other on a presidential message. Some of those long ones would take more than two hours.

No doubt the president, if he continues the custom, will make his messages conform to what he writes himself and not include all the data and reviews of departmental doings which cabinet officers usually furnish to pad out the annual report of the president, for it becomes nothing more on most occasions.

Want More Posts.

Secretary Garrison has been in favor of abandoning many of the military posts. He has been making a tour of different posts throughout the west, and it is interesting to note that every place where there is a post is openly and earnestly in favor of having that post enlarged, while a dozen or more places where no posts now exist are candidates for new posts. A military post near a town means more federal money, and of course the people are trying to get all they can along that line. Secretary Garrison seems to have added to his burdens in the matter of military posts.

Mann Keeps Control.

To a few of his personal friends minority leader Mann has complained that he does not get assistance from his fellow Republicans in such a way as to relieve him of any of the responsibility of his position. But it is doubtful whether Mann wants much assistance.

It is quite noticeable that he takes charge of matters which would naturally fall to the ranking Republican minority members of the different committees. And sometimes he overrules those minority members.

Mann is the real "boss" of his party in the house. John Sharp Williams, when minority leader, was also dominant in all affairs on the Democratic side.

Farmers Are Needed.

Congressman Burnett of Alabama, commenting on the tangle which has arisen in his state over the senatorial vacancy, says that it shows how careless were the lawyers of congress in writing a constitutional amendment which they cannot interpret.

"It reminds me," said Burnett, "of an old farmer in Alabama who announced that they were going to send farmers to the legislature hereafter. Instead of lawyers so that laws could be framed which people could understand."

Small States Represented.

Four small western states are represented on the finance committee which has charge of the tariff bill. They are Colorado, Utah, Wyoming and North Dakota.

It is true that three of these are Republicans and have not had much to say about making the present bill, but they are there just the same. Of the big states neither New York, Ohio, Illinois, Michigan, Texas, Iowa nor Minnesota are represented, nor is any part of the Pacific coast.

On the Republican side the unbroken rule of seniority prevents new men from getting on that committee and senators old in service get the places. The Democrats have broken their rule and many new senators are serving on the committee.

McAdoo Didn't Go In.

Secretary McAdoo, who had a great deal to do with the currency bill and drafted some provisions which many members did not like, was at a committee room of the house one day when the Democrats were in caucus on the currency bill.

"If you will step in there," said one of his friends to the treasury head, "you will hear something to your disadvantage."

"That's just why I am not going in," declared McAdoo. "I hear enough of that kind of talk without going after more."

Proof Positive.

Congressman Helm of Kentucky, speaking of the McDonald case from Michigan, said: "I can demonstrate in one minute that McDonald was elected. The election was held. The Democratic candidate does not claim that he was elected. The Republican candidate says he was not elected. McDonald has proved that he was elected, and he is entitled to the seat."

And no one could gainsay his reasoning.

Tokio Crowd Clamors for Hostilities With China.

MARCH ON FOREIGN OFFICE

Assassination of the Director of the Political Bureau Inflames the Masses and Exciting Scenes Occur—Speakers Bitterly Denounce Emptiness of Japanese Diplomacy.

Tokio, Sept. 8.—The assassination of Morihiro Abe, director of the political bureau of the Japanese foreign office, has inflamed the masses, and a dramatic chapter in the history of the new Japan was written.

Fifteen thousand persons gathered in mass meeting in Hibiya park, calling for military action against China. A majority of these marched to the foreign office and clamored for admission.

They demanded the dispatch of troops to China to take such measures as were necessary to obtain satisfaction for the killing of Japanese at Nanking, or, failing this, the resignation of the minister of foreign affairs, Baron Nobuaki Makino.

The speakers denounced the emptiness of Japanese diplomacy in connection with California and China and insisted that the insult to the Japanese flag at Nanking should be wiped out.

The manifestation was clearly an explosion of popular resentment against the ministry in its treatment of the California and Chinese questions.

Reduces Risk of Violence.

Profiting by the lessons of the riots which followed the conclusion of peace between Russia and Japan the government reduced the risk of violence by refusing to allow a single soldier or policeman at the scene.

The manifestants, many of whom were students, were orderly during the early part of the proceedings.

Suddenly the cry to march on the foreign office was raised and there was a general stampede, many persons barely escaping being crushed. The crowds surged through the streets and reached the foreign office to find that the high iron gates were locked.

Scores of the demonstrators pounded on the gates and called for them to be opened. The under officials refused. A delegation was appointed, the members of which climbed the gates, and then ensued a long parley.

The extraordinary situation continued for five hours, the delegates emerging periodically to pacify the crowd. Finally, when the discussion ended, they reported that Baron Makino had promised to receive them Sept. 15.

CARDINAL VIVES IS DEAD

Pope Deeply Affected When Told of His Death.

Rome, Sept. 8.—Cardinal Joseph Calasanz Vives y Tute, prefect of the congregation for religious affairs, is dead. Recently he had undergone an operation for appendicitis.

Cardinal Vives y Tute was created and proclaimed cardinal June 9, 1899. The pope was deeply affected when told of the cardinal's death and exclaimed: "I have lost one of my best friends, the church one of its greatest supporters."

NEWSPAPER PIONEER DIES

Earl S. Goodrich Passes Away at Age of Eighty-seven.

St. Paul, Sept. 8.—Earl S. Goodrich, the publisher of the first daily newspaper in Minnesota, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Sterling McMaisters, at the age of eighty-seven years. He had been ailing for many years and his death was not unexpected.

Mr. Goodrich came to St. Paul from New York in 1854 and immediately bought the Weekly Pioneer Press, which soon after turned into a daily. He was known as a forcible writer and had great influence in the early days, when he was prominent in state politics. It is said of him that he prevented the capital of the state from going to St. Peter, when a bill to that effect passed in the legislature of 1855 was stolen. Mr. Goodrich, it has been intimated, knew who took the bill and thereby foiled the friends of St. Peter in their project.

ANNUAL MESSAGE

NO DEPARTMENTAL DATA.

None of the Large States Now Represented on Finance Committee, Owing, in Part, to Abrogation of Old Seniority Rule—May Raise Rank of Spanish Minister to Ambassador.

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.

Washington, Sept. 8.—[Special.]—If the president keeps up the practice of reading his messages to congress he will have to curtail the annual message at the beginning of the regular session. Those ponderous documents of 30,000 to 50,000 words, reviewing the doings of the federal government for a year, brimming with statistics about departmental matters, could scarcely be read by any one man. The clerks in both senate and house "spell" each other on a presidential message. Some of those long ones would take more than two hours.

No doubt the president, if he continues the custom, will make his messages conform to what he writes himself and not include all the data and reviews of departmental doings which cabinet officers usually furnish to pad out the annual report of the president, for it becomes nothing more on most occasions.

Want More Posts.

Secretary Garrison has been in favor of abandoning many of the military posts. He has been making a tour of different posts throughout the west, and it is interesting to note that every place where there is a post is openly and earnestly in favor of having that post enlarged, while a dozen or more places where no posts now exist are candidates for new posts. A military post near a town means more federal money, and of course the people are trying to get all they can along that line. Secretary Garrison seems to have added to his burdens in the matter of military posts.

Mann Keeps Control.

To a few of his personal friends Minority Leader Mann has complained that he does not get assistance from his fellow Republicans in such a way as to relieve him of any of the responsibility of his position. But it is doubtful whether Mann wants much assistance.

It is quite noticeable that he takes charge of matters which would naturally fall to the ranking Republican minority members of the different committees. And sometimes he overrules those minority members.

Mann is the real "boss" of his party in the house. John Sharp Williams, when minority leader, was also dominant in all affairs on the Democratic side.

Farmers Are Needed.

Congressman Burnett of Alabama, commenting on the tangle which has arisen in his state over the senatorial vacancy, says that it shows how careless were the lawyers of congress in writing a constitutional amendment which they cannot interpret. "It reminds me," said Burnett, "of an old farmer in Alabama who announced that they were going to send farmers to the legislature hereafter, instead of lawyers so that laws could be framed which people could understand."

Small States Represented.

Four small western states are represented on the finance committee which has charge of the tariff bill. They are Colorado, Utah, Wyoming and North Dakota.

It is true that three of these are Republicans and have not had much to say about making the present bill, but they are there just the same. Of the big states neither New York, Ohio, Illinois, Michigan, Texas, Iowa nor Minnesota are represented, nor is any part of the Pacific coast.

On the Republican side the unbroken rule of seniority prevents new men from getting on that committee and senators old in service get the places. The Democrats have broken their rule and many new senators are serving on the committee.

McAdoo Didn't Go In.

Secretary McAdoo, who had a great deal to do with the currency bill and drafted some provisions which many members did not like, was at a committee room of the house one day when the Democrats were in caucus on the currency bill.

"If you will step in there," said one of his friends to the treasury head, "you will hear something to your disadvantage."

"That's just why I am not going in," declared McAdoo. "I hear enough of that kind of talk without going after more."

Proof Positive.

Congressman Helm of Kentucky, speaking of the McDonald case from Michigan, said: "I can demonstrate in one minute that McDonald was elected. The election was held. The Democratic candidate does not claim that he was elected. The Republican candidate says he was not elected. McDonald has proved that he was elected, and he is entitled to the seat."

And no one could gainsay his reasoning.

© 1912, by American Press Association.

While Connecticut authorities are conducting proceedings to determine the cause of the recent wreck at New Haven, in which twenty-one persons were killed, United States officials, members of the interstate commerce commission, are quietly planning for the federal investigation. This probe will be open to the public, differing in this respect from the others. H. W. Behnapp (top), chief inspector of safety appliances; F. B. Halby (center) and F. J. Howard (below), inspectors in charge of all railroad lines east of New York, are the United States officials in charge of the investigation.

Tokio Crowd Clamors for Hostilities With China.

Tokio, Sept. 8.—The assassination of Morihiro Abe, director of the political bureau of the Japanese foreign office, has inflamed the masses, and a dramatic chapter in the history of the new Japan was written.

A majority of these marched to the foreign office and clamored for admission.

They demanded the dispatch of troops to China to take such measures as were necessary to obtain satisfaction for the killing of Japanese at Nanking, or, failing this, the resignation of the minister of foreign affairs, Baron Nobuaki Makino.

The speakers denounced the emptiness of Japanese diplomacy in connection with California and China and insisted that the insult to the Japanese flag at Nanking should be wiped out.

The manifestation was clearly an explosion of popular resentment against the ministry in its treatment of the California and Chinese questions.

Reduces Risk of Violence.

Profiting by the lessons of the riots which followed the conclusion of peace between Russia and Japan the government reduced the risk of violence by refusing to allow a single soldier or policeman at the scene.

The manifestations, many of whom were students, were orderly during the early part of the proceedings.

The crowds surged through the streets and reached the foreign office to find that the high iron gates were locked.

Scores of the demonstrators pounded on the gates and called for them to be opened. The under officials refused. A delegation was appointed, the members of which climbed the gates, and then ensued a long parley.

The extraordinary situation continued for five hours, the delegates emerging periodically to pacify the crowd. Finally, when the discussion ended, they reported that Baron Makino had promised to receive them Sept. 15.

SNARES IN ENGLISH.
Puzzles For Foreigners Who Are Learning the Language.
It is hard for the person to whom English is his native tongue to realize what a struggle the foreigner has to understand some of the peculiarities of our spelling and pronunciation. One foreigner gives the following description of his first lesson in an English class.
We have been given a book to learn the letters. I arrive at the class, having learned them perfectly.
Soon, in the course of the lesson, we have the word I-o-w. "Love," I pronounce it, thinking the w has the sound of v.
"No; it is pronounced 'to,'" says the teacher.
"Then why is the w there?" I inquire, mystified.
"It is there because that is the way the word is spelled," responds the teacher, "but it is silent. Never mind why; it is sufficient to know that it is there."
Before long we come to n-o-w.
"Pronounce it," says the teacher.
"No," I reply.
"Why will you not?" she asks me.
It is some time before she understands that I am trying to pronounce the word when I say "No." Then she declares that, although n-o-w is lo, n-o-w is now.
"If you want to make it no," she explains kindly, "you put k before it."
You may believe I am bewildered. However, I memorize that n-o-w is now. The next word is s-n-o-w. I pronounce it like now with an s before it. The teacher laughs. The w is again become silent, apparently for no reason, and the word is called sno.
But that is not all. Later I find that if you drop the n from snow you can pronounce it whichever way you like.—Youth's Companion.

Puzzles For Foreigners Who Are Learning the Language.

It is hard for the person to whom English is his native tongue to realize what a struggle the foreigner has to understand some of the peculiarities of our spelling and pronunciation. One foreigner gives the following description of his first lesson in an English class.

We have been given a book to learn the letters. I arrive at the class, having learned them perfectly.

Soon, in the course of the lesson, we have the word l-o-w. "Love," I pronounce it, thinking the w has the sound of v.

"No; it is pronounced 'lo,' " says the teacher.

"Then why is the w there?" I inquire, mystified.

Before long we come to n-o-w.

"Pronounce it," says the teacher. "No," I reply.

"Why will you not?" she asks me.

It is some time before she understands that I am trying to pronounce the word when I say "No." Then she declares that, although n-o-w is lo, n-o-w is now.

"If you want to make it no," she explains kindly, "you put k before it." You may believe I am bewildered. However, I memorize that n-o-w is now. The next word is s-p-o-w. I pronounce it like now with an s before it. The teacher laughs. The w is again become silent, apparently for no reason, and the word is called sno.

But that is not all. Later I find that if you drop the n from snow you can pronounce it whichever way you like—Youth's Companion.

Good Ink, but No Bread.

Sweynheim and Pannartz, the two Germans who were the first to print books in Rome, used paper and types of excellent quality. Their ink on pages printed more than 400 years ago can vie in blackness with the best of the present day. Yet with all their labors they often lacked bread. In a petition to the pope they informed his holiness that their house was full of proof sheets, but that they had nothing to eat.

OFFICIAL CALL HAS BEEN CALLED

For State Federation Meeting of Women's Clubs to be Held Here,
Sept. 23, 24 and 25.

MEETINGS HELD IN OPERA HOUSE

Except the First Day's Session of the Council which will be Held in Commercial Club

Copies of the official call for the 19th Annual meeting of the Minnesota Federation of Women's Clubs to be held in Brainerd September 23, 24
and 25 have been received from Mrs.
Robert Mee, corresponding secretary.
The Council will be called to order at 9:30, Tuesday, September 23, at the Commercial club rooms and an all day sessions will be held there. The evening sessions on the following days will be held at the opera house.

The Commercial club has set apart
one of its rooms to house the art exhibit which during the past few years has become one of the attractive features of the annual gathering.

The entertainment committee is busy arranging for the comfort of visiting delegates. In addition to the hotels, which probably will be taxed to their utmost, many private homes will be available for the three days of the convention at nominal cost. Those who have private accommodations for one or more are requested to notify Mrs. F. A. Farrar, chairman of the entertainment committee.

One of the features of the convention will be an address by Dr. George E. Vincent, president of the University of Minnesota. Those who were privileged to hear Dr. Vincent's eloquent address at the Commercial club last year will appreciate the treat in store for them. This address, the closing reception and all sessions will be open to the general public.

A full roster of state officers will be elected and vice presidents for five districts. The formation of the new tenth congressional district by the last legislature will necessitate the readjustment of club districts and the naming of an additional vice-president.

The various committees in charge of preliminary arrangements are working with machine like precision and everything points to an interest-

Notice to Eagles

All members are urged to attend our next regular meeting on Tuesday evening, September 9th. There will be initiation, refreshments, music, etc.

Advt.—$212 Secy, F. O. E.

PAID WITH A FLAG.

Rich Ducal Estates in England With a Curious Rental.

It is not generally known that on the anniversary of Waterloo each year
—June 18, 1815, was the original day—
the Duke of Wellington is required to present the sovereign with a new flag bearing the French colors as an acknowledgment that his grace holds the manor of Stratfieldsaye at the will
and pleasure of the king, that estate having been presented to the Iron Duke
as a national gift for his success over Napoleon at Waterloo.

The ceremony of the presentation of the flag is today much shorn of its ancient glory, for formerly the ruling duke used to bring the trophy himself on horseback and personally offered it to the monarch. Nowadays it is sent by deputy, however, and is then placed by some appointed equerry in the position assigned to it—namely, over the marble bust of the old Duke of Wellington that stands on its pedestal in the guardroom at Windsor castle. The flag which has rested there during the preceding year is then taken down and returned to the duke's messenger.

It is on the special condition of thus
rendering this annual tribute of feudal service, as we may call it, that the reigning duke is allowed to retain the splendid estate already mentioned. If he omits to send the banner on the proper day he forfeits the right to the estates.

The same principle applies to the beautiful domains of Blenheim held by the Duke of Marlborough, who similarly has to send a new flag on each anniversary of the battle (Aug. 13, 1704). The banner is placed over the bust of the noted Duke of Marlborough, also in the guardroom at Winsor.—London Sphere.

A Tribute

Many expressions of regret are heard upon the streets for the late Jay Henry Long. His face was familiar to nearly every citizen. Living as he did in his office he was much upon the streets until he had become one of the "land marks" of the town.
He seems to be more missed now than
he was the day he was laid away beneath the sod of Evergreen cemetery.

Contrary to the general impression he was not a rich man nor was he even well-to-do. He could have been had he insisted on the payment of fees due him from cases he had undertaken in behalf of the poor. His counsel was often paid by a sincere,
but unprofitable "thank you." Lawyers do not grow rich materially in this way but nevertheless they are the ones who are missed when the
"book is closed."

During his last unconscious moments he dropped into the legal vernacular, so long familiar to him.
Those standing near heard him repeatedly say, "may it please the court we rest."

Today those who knew him best bear him this kindly wish—may he rest in peace. ***

PHYSICIAN LOCATES HERE

Dr. A. P. Woodward, of Cannon Falls, Homeopath, Locates in
Brainerd

Brainerd has a homeopathic physician, Dr. A. P. Woodward, formerly of Cannon Falls, deciding to locate here.
He has established offices in the Walverman block, and has removed his family here. Concerning him the Cannon Falls paper says: Dr. A. P.

Woodward intends to move from Cannon Falls and locate in Brainerd where fine inducements have been offered for a physician of his known ability and intelligence in treating diseases of various kinds. His family will leave for Brainerd this week
and he will follow a few days later, or as soon as he can safely leave some patients whom he is now treating.
The probabilities are that the doctor will engage almost exclusively in office practice. Here in Cannon Falls his office practice has been large and never larger than when he leaves it.

VICTOR HUGO IN EXILE.

And the Attic Room in Which He Wrote His Masterpiece.

A graphic description of a visit to Victor Hugo in Guernsey and of his quaint home there is given by the late Sir William Butler in his autobiography.

seen in Hauteville house the master's sleeping room was the strangest. He had built it on the roof between two great blocks of chimneys. You ascended to his workshop bedroom by stairs which somewhat resembled a ladder. Quite half of the room was glass, and the view from it was magnificent. The isles of Jethou and Sark were in the middle distance, and beyond lay many a mile of the Norman coast. Alderney lay to the north, and beyond it one saw the glistening windows of the triple lighthouses of the Casquet rocks and still more to the right the high ridges overlooking Cherbourg. The bed was a small camp bedstead, with a table on one side of it and a small desk chest of drawers
on the other, with pens, ink and paper always within reach.

"Near the bed stood a small stove,
which he lighted himself every morning and on which he prepared his cafe
au lait; then work began at the large
table which stood in the glass alcove
a few feet from the foot of the bed.
This work went on till it was time to dress and descend to déjeuner in the room on the ground floor already described. As the sheets of writing paper were finished they were numbered and dropped on the floor, to be picked up, arranged and put away in the drawer desk at the end of the morning's labor. He called the writing table his 'carpenter's bench' and the leaves which fell from it his 'shavings.'

"It was at this table and in this airy attic that most of the great work of his later life was done. Here were written 'Les Misérables,' 'Les Travellleurs de la Mer' and many volumes of poetry."

TWO NEW SILOS

Crow Wing County Farmers Adopt
Progressive Methods of Stock
Feeding

Mrs. John Britton and P. M. Zak-ariasen have just completed the erection of two new silos and are now filling them. These silos are of a new form of construction and are known as the panel silo and were placed through the agency of W. W.
Michael.

The silo is a sure indicator of progress and has the unqualified endorsement of both state and national agricultural bureaus.

This makes four silos now in the immediate vicinity of Brainerd. The two others being on the farms of J. M.

Hermanson-Sans

A pretty home wedding took place at the home of A. Carlson on 19th street Saturday evening at 8 o'clock, when Herman F. Hermanson and Wilhelmina Sans were united as man and wife. Rev. E. Carlson performing the ceremony. After the ceremony a luncheon was served. About thirty friends were present.

Mr. Hermanson is employed at the N. P. shops and Miss Sans is a sister to Mrs. Aug. Carlson. The couple will make their home at the corner of Oak and 19th streets.

The Dispatch joins their many friends in wishing them much happiness and prosperity.

Notice

NERVOUS DYSPESIA. GAS OR INDIGESTION

Each "Pape's Diapepsin" digests 3000 grains food, ending all stomach misery in five minutes

Time it! Pape's Diapepsin will digest anything you eat and overcome a sour, gassy or out-of-order stomach surely within five minutes.

If your meals don't fit comfortably, or what you eat lies like a lump of lead in your stomach, or if you have heartburn, that is a sign of indigestion.

Get from your pharmacist a fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin and take a dose just as soon as you can.
There will be no sour risings, no belching of undigested food mixed with acid, no stomach gas of heartburn, fullness or heavy feeling in the stomach, nausea, debilitating headaches, dizziness or intestinal griping.
This will all go, and, besides, there
stomach to poison your breath with nauseous odors.

Pape's Diapepsin is a certain cure
for out-of-order stomachs, because it takes hold of your food and digests it just the same as if your stomach wasn't there.

Relief in five minutes from all stomach misery is waiting for you at any drug store.

These large fifty-cent cases contain enough "Pape's Diapepsin" to keep the entire family free from stomach disorders and indigestion for many months. It belongs in your home.—Advt.

Direct or Alternating Currents.

It doesn't matter much the how and why of the difference between a direct current and an alternating current if
Of course you have to know this because appliances are made for one or the other, and no appliance made for an alternating current can be used
where direct current is supplied, or vice versa. So to order intelligently you must either ask somebody who knows or find out for yourself. Here is a simple way to tell which is which:
Hold a simple magnet bar near a lighted incandescent lamp. If the current is alternating the filament—that is, the part inside the lamp from which the light emanates—will vibrate; if the current is direct the filament will be attracted or repelled as the positive or negative pole of the magnet is held

Difficult Post.

There are a lot of difficult feats, but probably the most difficult of all is that of remembering the name of the man to whom you have just been introduced.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Edison Talking Pictures

Thomas A. Edison, the inventor of the phonograph and moving pictures has at last successfully combined these two in "The Kinetophone" or Talking Pictures. The actors for the Kinetophone now speak their lines and sing their songs and the phonograph electrically connected to the camera records every sound uttered
in perfect harmony with the accompanying action. The result is that when the records are run off in connection with the film by means of very intricate machinery we see the actors and their movements and hear every sound in perfect unison. High class vaudeville numbers as well as drama, comedy and grand opera selections reproduced in this manner true to life in voice and action is sufficient to convince the most skeptical as to the positive success of Mr. Edison's latest achievement at the Brainerd opera house Saturday and Sunday, September 13 and 14.

Election of Officers

The Woman's Union Label League met on September 5 and the following officers were elected:

ick.

Fin. Sec.—Mrs. J. P. Theines.
Secretary—Mrs. L. E. Bedal.
Sergeant-at-arms—Mrs. W. Sasser.
They were duly installed by P. T.
Brown assisted by J. M. Taylor, installing Sergeant-at-Arms.

FAVORS TELEPHONE MERGER

From the Landmark, Norfolk, Va.

The Landmark has never wavered
in the opinion, previously expressed,
that under proper conditions as to rates and service, one telephone system is better than two.

In this community the question was to reach a satisfactory conclusion about these conditions. At last the matter seems to have reached a point where a merger of the two companies now operating here is definitely in sight, and desirably in sight.

This paper has never editorially discussed the minute details of the proposed ordinance, and will not do so now. The subject has been considered not only by the Ordinance Committee of the City Council, which addressed its attention particularly
to the rates, but also by the Industrial Commission, which recommends
the adoption of the merger ordinance including a proviso that there shall be no increase of rates until January 1st 1913, and no increase over the rates then permissible under the proposed merger ordinance until five years shall have elapsed from the date of the passage of the ordinance,
and no increase after the five years except by due public application to the State Corporation Commission and authorization by that body.

President Harvey M. Dickson of the Industrial Commission is generally regarded in this city and section as a very able man of affairs
whose intelligence is not easily deceived as to the merits of public questions. He has completed a profound and prolonged study of the telephone situation, here and elsewhere, and has satisfied himself that the Southern Bell Company has agreed to every condition that could reasonably
be required in affecting the merger,
and that it would be decidedly to the interest of the community to pass the ordinance as recommended by the Ordinance Committee of the Council and approved by the Industrial Commission of Norfolk.

The Landmark, in view of these important facts believes that it would be the part of wisdom for the Council to adopt the ordinance in its amended shape. It will certainly be a great relief when a citizen
can go to a telephone with the assurance that every other telephone-user in the territory uses that same
'phone if any 'phone at all. A merger under such carefully-guarded terms as have been secured in this case ought to be welcomed, we think,
by the merchant, professional man,
and householder.—Advt.

Soldering Enamelled wire.

Now that enamelled wire is coming extensively into use for winding electromagnets and for similar work it is of interest to be able to solder the ends of such wire in a ready manner
and especially to clean off the coat of enamel so as to leave the ends bare.
Where the wire is very fine it is a very difficult matter to strip the enamel without breaking the wire, so that the present German method is a timely
one. The ends of the wire are dipped for some time in boiling potash lye or in concentrated sulphuric acid or again in a concentrated and cold lye bath, then washed for an instant with hot water and dried by dipping in alcohol. This leaves a clean surface of metal for soldering.—Scientific American.

To Protect Iron Pipes.

Iron pipe can be protected from corrosion by heating in a muffle to 1,000 degrees F. and admitting steam at the same temperature. A layer of magnetic oxide of iron is formed. A more satisfactory protection, however,
is obtained by Smith's process. The well cleaned pipe heated to 700 degrees F. is dipped into mixture of pitch, coal tar and a little linseed oil which has been heated to 300 degrees F.
After a few minutes the pipe is drained vertically and cooled. It offends the rapid oxidation of the iron and all forms a tough binder, as in paint drying. Lead lined pipe is used for many purposes.

HINTS FOR MOTORISTS.

Precautions to Observe in Preparing
the Car For a Run.

Tire trouble is one of the most common difficulties experienced in touring. The most common troubles with tires are punctures and blowouts. As a rule, punctures are unforeseen occurrences which cannot be prevented. However, a careful driver who watches the road closely will have fewer punctures than a careless one.
Blowouts are caused by insufficient or over inflation and by cuts and abrasions of the casing fabric. They can be prevented by keeping the tires properly inflated and by having casings vulcanized before cuts reach the fabric. The following rules regarding tires should be observed:

Never buy cheap inner tubes or casings.

Equip your car with tires one size larger than actually necessary. Never allow your tires to be exposed to the hot sun when unnecessary.

Keep tires well inflated, but allow for the expansion of the air in summer.

Never drive on a casing which has
the fabric exposed.

Do not allow your tires to stand in oil or gasoline.

Next to negligence, speed is the most detrimental to an automobile. Speeding a motorcar on paved streets or smooth roads is not, as a rule, injurious, but when a machine is driven over rough country roads at even a fairly high rate of speed every part of the car is strained and the life of the machine is greatly shortened.

See that all tires are fully inflated.

Do not start out with casings cut or

water, not half full.

See if the oiling system is in good working order.

Make certain that the transmission and differential are well packed with grease.

Examine all bolts, nuts and fittings
for possible looseness.

Start the motor and allow it to run slowly for several minutes to see if all cylinders are firing properly.

Try the brakes and if loose tighten
them up by means of the turn buckles
on the brake rods.

See that the tool box contains a full
set of tools, some extra spark plugs,
a set of skid chains and at least one extra inner tube.—Automobile Dealer and Repairer.

HARDENING STEEL.

Use of Compressed Air Gives Better
Results Than Old Process.

A process of hardening steel with compressed air is said to be in successful use by a German firm in cases where only certain parts of the metal require hardening. The usual process of hardening by chilling the steel in water, oil or special baths is not satisfactory in such cases owing to the tension created between the hardened and unhardened portions.

In the new process the compressed air is sprayed over the metal through special nozzles, with which, by varying
the number and spacing of the holes, the degree of hardening can be accurately graded. It is claimed that a wide range of results can be obtained by adapting the shape of the nozzle to

OFFICIAL CALL HAS BEEN CALLED

For State Federation Meeting of Women's Clubs to be Held Here,
Sept. 23, 24 and 25.

MEETINGS HELD IN OPERA HOUSE

Except the First Day's Session of the Council which will be Held

Copies of the official call for the 19th Annual meeting of the Minnesota Federation of Women's Clubs to be held in Brainerd September 23, 24
and 25 have been received from Mrs.
Robert Mee, corresponding secretary.

The Council will be called to order at 9:30, Tuesday, September 23, at
the Commercial club rooms and an all day sessions will be held there. The
evening sessions on the following days
will be held at the opera house.

The Commercial club has set apart
exhibit which during the past few
years has become one of the attractive features of the annual gathering.

The entertainment committee is
busy arranging for the comfort of
visiting delegates. In addition to the hotels, which probably will be
taxed to their utmost, many private
days of the convention at nominal
cost. Those who have private accommodations for one or more are requested to notify Mrs. P. A. Parrar, chairman of the entertainment committee.

One of the features of the convention will be an address by Dr. George E. Vincent, president of the University of Minnesota. Those who were privileged to hear Dr. Vincent's eloquent address at the Commercial club
store for them. This address, the
be open to the general public.

new tenth congressional district by
the last legislature will necessitate
the naming of an additional vice-
president.

of preliminary arrangements are working with machine like precision
and everything points to an interest-

Notice to Eagles

All members are urged to attend
our next regular meeting on Tuesday evening, September 9th. There will be initiation, refreshments, music,

PAID WITH A FLAG.

Curious Rental.

It is not generally known that on
the anniversary of Waterloo each year—
June 18, 1815, was the original day—
the Duke of Wellington is required to present the sovereign with a new flag
bearing the French colors as an acknowledgment that his grace holds the
and pleasure of the king, that estate
having been presented to the Iron Duke
as a national gift for his success over Napoleon at Waterloo.

The ceremony of the presentation of
the flag is today much shorn of its
ancient glory, for formerly the ruling
duke used to bring the trophy himself
on horseback and personally offered it
to the monarch. Nowadays it is sent
by deputy, however, and is then placed by some appointed equestrian in the position assigned to it—namely, over the
marble bust of the old Duke of Wellington that stands on its pedestal in
the guardroom at Windsor castle. The
flag which has rested there during the
preceding year is then taken down and
returned to the duke's messenger.

rendering this annual tribute of feudal
proper day he forfeits the right to the estate.

The same principle applies to the beautiful domains of Blenheim held by the Duke of Marlborough, who similarly has to send a new flag on each anniversary of the battle (Aug. 13, 1704). The banner is placed over the bust of the noted Duke of Marlborough, also in the guardroom at Win-
sor.—London Sphere.

A Tribute

Many expressions of regret are
heard upon the streets for the late Jay Henry Long. His face was familiar to nearly every citizen. Living
as he did in his office he was much
one of the "land marks" of the town.
He seems to be more missed now than
he was the day he was laid away beneath the sod of Evergreen cemetery.

Contrary to the general impression
he was not a rich man nor was he
even well-to-do. He could have been
had he insisted on the payment of
counsel was often paid by a sincere,
but unprofitable "thank you." Lawyers do not grow rich materially in this way but nevertheless they are
the ones who are missed when the
"book is closed."

During his last unconscious moments he dropped into the legal vernacular, so long familiar to him.
Those standing near heard him repeatedly say, "may it please the court
we rest."

Today those who knew him best
bear him this kindly wish—may he
rest in peace. ***

PHYSICIAN LOCATES HERE

Dr. A. P. Woodward, of Cannon Falls, Homeopath, Locates in
Brainerd

Brainerd has a homeopathic physician, Dr. A. P. Woodward, formerly of Cannon Falls, deciding to locate here.
He has established offices in the
his family here. Concerning him the
Cannon Falls paper says: Dr. A. P.

Woodward intends to move from Can-
where fine inducements have been offered for a physician of his knowl-
ability and intelligence in treating
diseases of various kinds. His family will leave for Brainerd this week
and he will follow a few days later,
or as soon as he can safely leave some
patients whom he is now treating.
The probabilities are that the doctor
will engage almost exclusively in
office practice. Here in Cannon Falls
his office practice has been large and

VICTOR HUGO IN EXILE.

And the Attic Room in Which He Wrote His Masterpiece.

A graphic description of a visit to Victor Hugo in Guernsey and of his
quaint home there is given by the late
Sir William Butler in his autobiography:

seen in Hauteville house the master's sleeping room was the strangest. He
great blocks of chimneys. You ascended to his workshop bedroom by
stairs which somewhat resembled a
glass, and the view from it was magnificent. The isles of Jethou and Sark
were in the middle distance, and beyond lay many a mile of the Norman
beyond it one saw the glistening windows of the triple lighthouses of the Casquet rocks and still more to the
right the high ridges overlooking Cherbourg. The bed was a small camp
bedstead, with a table on one side of
it and a small desk chest of drawers
on the other, with pens, ink and paper
always within reach.

"Near the bed stood a small stove,
which he lighted himself every morning and on which he prepared his cafe
au lait; then work began at the large
table which stood in the glass alcove
a few feet from the foot of the bed.
This work went on till it was time to dress and descend to dejeuner in the room on the ground floor already described. As the sheets of writing paper were finished they were numbered and dropped on the floor, to be picked up, arranged and put away in
the drawer desk at the end of the morning's labor. He called the writing table his 'carpenter's bench' and
the leaves which fell from it his 'shav-
ings.'

attic that most of the great work of
written 'Les Miserables,' 'Les Travell-eurs de la Mer' and many volumes of poetry."

Advice to Lady Gardeners.

ing, sow buttons on your husband's clothes, do not rake up any grievances, protect the young and tender branches of your family, plant a smile of good temper on your face, carefully root out all angry feelings, and you may expect a good crop of happiness.—Ex-

Mrs. John Britton and P. M. Zak-ariassen have just completed the erection of two new silos and are now
filling them. These silos are of a new form of construction and are
placed through the agency of W. W.
Michael.

The silo is a sure indicator of progress and has the unqualified endorsement of both state and national agricultural bureaus.

This makes four silos now in the immediate vicinity of Brainerd. The two others being on the farms of J. M.

Hermanson-Sans

A pretty home wedding took place at the home of A. Carlson on 19th street Saturday evening at 8 o'clock,
when Herman F. Hermanson and Wilhelmina Sans were united as man and wife. Rev. Elov Carlson performing the ceremony. After the ceremony a luncheon was served.
About thirty friends were present.

Mr. Hermanson is employed at the
N. P. shops and Miss Sans is a sister
to Mrs. Aug. Carlson. The couple will make their home at the corner of Oak and 19th streets.

The Dispatch joins their many friends in wishing them much happiness and prosperity.

NERVOUS DYSPEPSIA, GAS OR INDIGESTION

Each "Pape's Diapepsin" digests 3000
grains food, ending all stomach
misery in five minutes

Time it! Pape's Diapepsin will digest anything you eat and overcome a sour, gassy or out-of-order stomach
surely within five minutes.

If your meals don't fit comfortably,
or what you eat lies like a lump of
lead in your stomach, or if you have
heartburn, that is a sign of indigestion.

Get from your pharmacist a fifty-
cent case of Pape's Diapepsin and
take a dose just as soon as you can.
There will be no sour risings, no
belching of undigested food mixed
burn, fullness or heavy feeling in the stomach, nausea, debilitating headaches, dizziness or intestinal griping.
This will all go, and, besides, there
stomach to poison your breath with
nauseous odors.

Pape's Diapepsin is a certain cure
for out-of-order stomachs, because it
takes hold of your food and digests it
just the same as if your stomach
wasn't there.

Relief in five minutes from all stomach misery is waiting for you at
any drug store.

These large fifty-cent cases contain enough "Pape's Diapepsin" to keep the entire family free from stomach disorders and indigestion for many months. It belongs in your home.—Advt.

Direct or Alternating Currents.

It doesn't matter much the how and
why of the difference between a direct
current and an alternating current if
cause appliances are made for one or
where direct current is supplied, or
vice versa. So to order intelligently you must either ask somebody who knows or find out for yourself. Here is a simple way to tell which is which:
Hold a simple magnet bar near a lighted incandescent lamp. If the current
part inside the lamp from which the
light emanates—will vibrate; if the current is direct the filament will be at-
negative pole of the magnet is held

Difficult Feet.

There are a lot of difficult feet, but probably the most difficult of all is that
of remembering the name of the man
duced.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Edison Talking Pictures

Thomas A. Edison, the inventor of the phonograph and moving pictures
has at last successfully combined
these two in "The Kinetophone" or Talking Pictures. The actors for the Kinetophone now speak their lines
and sing their songs and the phonograph electrically connected to the
camera records every sound uttered
in perfect harmony with the accompanying action. The result is that when the records are run off in connection with the film by means of
actors and their movements and hear every sound in perfect union. High class vaudeville numbers as well as
drama, comedy and grand opera selections reproduced in this manner
true to life in voice and action is sufficient to convince the most skeptical as to the positive success of
Mr. Edison's latest achievement at
the Brainerd opera house Saturday
and Sunday, September 13 and 14.

Election of Officers

met on September 5 and the follow-

Sergeant-at-arms—Mrs. W. Sasser.
They were duly installed by P. T.
Brown assisted by J. M. Taylor, in-

FAVORS TELEPHONE MERGER

From the Landmark, Norfolk, Va.

in the opinion, previously expressed,
that under proper conditions as to
rates and service, one telephone system is better than two.

In this community the question
was to reach a satisfactory conclusion about these conditions. At last
the matter seems to have reached a point where a merger of the two companies now operating here is definitely in sight, and desirably in sight.

This paper has never editorially discussed the minute details of the proposed ordinance, and will not do so now. The subject has been considered not only by the Ordinance
addressed its attention particularly
trial Commission, which recommends
the adoption of the merger ordinance
including a proviso that there shall
be no increase of rates until January 1st 1913, and no increase over the
rates then permissible under the proposed merger ordinance until five
years shall have elapsed from the date of the passage of the ordinance,
the State Corporation Commission

the Industrial Commission is generally regarded in this city and section as a very able man of affairs
whose intelligence is not easily deceived as to the merits of public questions. He has completed a profound
situation, here and elsewhere, and
has satisfied himself that the Southern Bell Company has agreed to
every condition that could reasonably
be required in affecting the merger,
and that it would be decidedly to the interest of the community to pass the ordinance as recommended by the Ordinance Committee of the Council and approved by the Industrial Commission of Norfolk.

The Landmark, in view of these
important facts believes that it would be the part of wisdom for the Council to adopt the ordinance in its amended shape. It will certainly be a great relief when a citizen
can go to a telephone with the assurance that every other telephone-
user in the territory uses that same
'phone if any 'phone at all. A merger
under such carefully-guarded
terms as have been secured in this
case ought to be welcomed, we think,
by the merchant, professional man,
and householder.—Advt.

Soldering Enameled Wire.

Now that enameled wire is coming extensively into use for winding elec-
tromagnets and for similar work it is of interest to be able to solder the
ends of such wire in a ready manner
and especially to clean off the coat
of enamel so as to leave the ends bare.
Where the wire is very fine it is a very difficult matter to strip the enamel
without breaking the wire, so that the present German method is a timely
one. The ends of the wire are dipped
for some time in boiling potash lye
or in concentrated sulphuric acid or
again in a concentrated and cold lye
bath, then washed for an instant with
hot water and dried by dipping in
alcohol. This leaves a clean surface of metal for soldering.—Scientific American.

To Protect Iron Pipe.

Iron pipe can be protected from corrosion by heating in a muffle to 1,000 degrees F. and admitting steam at the same temperature. A layer of magnetic oxide of iron is formed. A more satisfactory protection, however,
is obtained by Smith's process. The
well cleaned pipe heated to 700 degrees F. is dipped into mixture of pitch,
coal tar and a little linseed oil which has been heated to 300 degrees F. After a few minutes the pipe is drained vertically and cooled. Of course the rapid oxidation of the linseed oil forms a tough binder, as in paint drying. Lead lined pipe is used for many purposes.

HINTS FOR MOTORISTS.

the Car For a Run.

Tire trouble is one of the most common difficulties experienced in
touring. The most common troubles
with tires are punctures and blowouts. As a rule, punctures are unforeseen occurrences which cannot be prevented. However, a careful driver
who watches the road closely will have
fewer punctures than a careless one.
Blowouts are caused by insufficient
or over inflation and by cuts and abrasions of the casing fabric. They can be prevented by keeping the tires
properly inflated and by having casings vulcanized before cuts reach the fabric. The following rules regarding
tires should be observed:

Never buy cheap inner tubes or
casings.

Equip your car with tires one size larger than actually necessary. Never allow your tires to be exposed to the
hot sun when unnecessary.

Keep tires well inflated, but allow
for the expansion of the air in summer.

Never drive on a casing which has
the fabric exposed.

Do not allow your tires to stand in
oil or gasoline.

Next to negligence, speed is the most detrimental to an automobile. Speeding a motorcar on paved streets or
smooth roads is not, as a rule, injurious, but when a machine is driven
over rough country roads at even a fairly high rate of speed every part of the car is strained and the life of the
machine is greatly shortened.

See that all tires are fully inflated.
Do not start out with casings cut or
worn so that the fabric is exposed.

water, not half full.

See if the oiling system is in good working order.

Make certain that the transmission and differential are well packed with grease.

Examine all bolts, nuts and fittings
for possible looseness.

Start the motor and allow it to run
slowly for several minutes to see if all
cylinders are firing properly.

Try the brakes and if loose tighten
them up by means of the turn buckles
on the brake rods.

See that the tool box contains a full
set of tools, some extra spark plugs,
a set of skid chains and at least one extra inner tube.—Automobile Dealer and Repairer.

HARDENING STEEL

Results Than Old Process.

A process of hardening steel with compressed air is said to be in successful use by a German firm in cases where only certain parts of the metal
require hardening. The usual process
of hardening by chilling the steel in
water, oil or special baths is not satisfactory in such cases owing to the tension created between the hardened and unhardened portions.

In the new process the compressed
air is sprayed over the metal through special nozzles, with which, by varying
the number and spacing of the holes,
the degree of hardening can be accurately graded. It is claimed that a wide range of results can be obtained by adapting the shape of the nozzle to

THE OLD MAN'S STRANGE STORY

Weird Visitor Quiets Levity of a Dinner Party.

A number of us were sitting in a restaurant. The dinner was over, and we were enjoying coffee and cigars. We fell to talking about death and from that to joking about our own probable exits from the world. Suddenly a man sitting at a neighboring table, with his back to us, turned and faced us. I shall never forget his face or the expression it wore. It was the oldest face I ever saw.

Had he really announced the fact the effect could scarcely have been greater. A cold chill passed over every one of us.

"Was I there?" The stranger laughed, a low, singular laugh, unlike any I had ever heard before, a laugh that had I given way to my feelings would have set my teeth to chattering. "Yes; I was on hand," he went on. "I was standing near a party of young officers who were talking upon the very subject you have been discussing. They were all boys, nothing but boys, to whom death looked farther off than the stars in the firmament. They were Lieutenant Price of the cavalry, Pierce of the artillery and Skidmore of the staff. They were making a pool to be divided between the survivors or survivor after the battle. The fools didn't believe any of them would be killed. Were there not old generals and colonels in the service who had fought battles unscathed? They forgot the many who had fallen; they forgot that under the doctrine of probabilities one or more of them would be killed or at least wounded; they forgot that death is on every battlefield and does not like to be laughed at."

"An order was sent to the cavalry to charge. Seeing them making ready, I joined them and rode directly behind Brice. We were met by a terrific fire of what in those days they called 'grape and canister.'"

"Here were two of these young gamblers with death who were already worsted. The third, Skidmore, received an order to ride from left to right of the line of battle to carry an order. Disdaining to go behind, he went between the opposing forces. It was a hot fire he was riding through, but he seemed to care little for it. Men had gone through just such dangers before, and so would he. His horse, wildly frightened, was plunging, and, stumbling, it fell. Skidmore was thrown, but, rising, pulled the horse to its feet by the bridle reins, mounted and was about to ride on when I touched him on the shoulder. A cannon ball shrieked by and took him with it, a mutilated mass. Well, I laughed."

"Laughed?" exclaimed every horror-stricken man.

"Yes, gentlemen. Why not? Had not these foolish fellows laughed at Death? Had they not sported with the all-powerful specter, and that on the very verge of one of his carnivals?"

There was something so terrible in the speaker's wrath that every one of us—every one except Baxter, the old man of our party—shrank back.

"Who is this Death," said Baxter contemptuously, "of whom we must all speak so gingerly? The very certainty of his coming takes away from our terror of him, and if we do fear him we surely do not respect him. He comes into families and separates husband and wife, parents and children. If he does not come early he will surely come late, when we have exhausted life's pleasures, comforts, attachments, hopes. Then we must live on waiting for him. A fig for your Death, I say!"

The stranger who had been so flippant suddenly quieted. He cast a look at Baxter, who returned his glance calmly and, rising from his seat, said: "Pardon me, gentlemen, for interrupting your amusement. Death loves to get his clutches on those who fear him. When he seizes upon such as you," looking at Baxter, "it is like a huntsman shooting a stag in its sleep."

The old man who had met his match in an old man turned and strode out of the restaurant. While his going was a relief, it was not possible for us soon to recover from the influence he had exerted over us. We sat for some time, each silently meditating on the strange experience. Then some one said:

"I wonder who the old fellow is anyway."

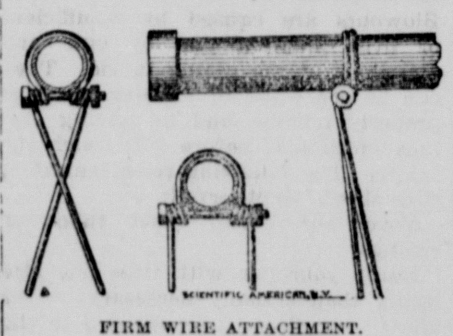

There was no answer except that which each of us gave for himself.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it incurable, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only Constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any cure it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address, F. J. ## FIRM WIRE FASTENING.

How to Attach Heavy Guy Wire to Smooth Iron Pipe.

Many wireless telegraph amateurs have experienced great difficulty in trying to attach the heavy guy wires firmly to the smooth galvanized iron pipe mast which is frequently employed as a support for the aerial wires, writes H. Klatz in the Scientific American. In order to preserve the full

The writer recently found himself up against the same problem and solved it in the following manner: The guy wire was first wound three times around the end of an iron bolt near the head, then twice around the pipe and then three times around the bolt again at the other end. The nut was then tightened up slightly so as to hold the wire in position while the other ends were anchored, and when this had been done it was screwed up tightly and the projecting end of the bolt cut off.

Gluing Abrasives on Grinders.

Trouble is often experienced in gluing sandpaper and emery cloth on the disk of a grinder so it will stick until it wears out. The following method will give good results in making the abrasive disk adhere to the entire surface of the metal disk: Apply a thin coat of common hot glue or liquid glass on both the emery cloth and the disk. Lay two layers of cotton batting or some other soft and yielding material on a perfectly flat surface. Place the disk on this with the abrasive side of the cloth or paper facing the padding material and lay some heavy weights on the disk to give the necessary pressure, fifty pounds usually being sufficient. The padding will give a uniform pressure and make the contact perfect over the entire surface.

Oxidizing German Silver.

German silver does not oxidize with the usual immersion dips, such as liver of sulphur, says the Metal Industry. It is customary to copperplate the German silver for a short time, then oxidize in a cold solution consisting of one gallon of water, one ounce of liver of sulphur and one-sixteenth ounce of ammonia.

This will produce a black tone. If the finish is to show more of a gun metal tone the oxidized surface should be scratched brushed after the articles have been washed and dried out.

Fiber Washers.

Fiber washers should never be used in the fuel line or in any part of the motor where gasoline in its liquid state is liable to rest upon them. The action of gasoline upon the fiber washer has a tendency to make the motor run sluggishly by forming a deposit, and lead washers should always be used in such instances.

Love In the Stock Market

By DONALD CHAMBERLIN

About the close of the last century, when shares on the stock market were rising and falling like the waves of the sea under a storm, James Rigdon was for a time a power in Wall street. When it was reported that Rigdon was selling a stock everybody rushed to sell. When he bought the price would rise like the thermometer on a July morning.

Rigdon was a bachelor, and as soon as it became known among his women friends that he knew what stocks were going up and what were going down he received more attention than the handsomest man in New York. One of these ladies, Miss Martindale, he wished to claim as his own, but despite all he could do he couldn't find out whether she had any use for him other than to learn how to make money in stocks.

One evening while with her she imparted him to give her a tip on some stock that was about to be "put up." He explained to her that when he boomed a stock, if it were known that he was booming it, it would rise in value, but the trouble was that, when he wished to unload, the moment it was known that he had begun to sell, down would go the market and he would be left with a lot of "undigested securities" on his hands. He was about to put up the market price on a certain stock, but he could not take her into his scheme, for if it were known that she was buying and selling by his advice it would result disastrously for him.

"But I won't tell," she said. "Can I rely on you?" "Certainly."

"Very well. Buy Onarora Copper. It is selling at 7 cents a share." "How awfully kind of you!" "I can rely on you?" "Surely."

She gave him a special pressure when he left her and, running to the telephone, ordered him to purchase 1,000 shares of Onarora Copper. He did so without disturbing the market price of the stock half a point. Then she fell to thinking that her father and her brother and her sister would be delighted to participate in her good fortune, so she told them she had bought Onarora. There was no need for them to ask her why, because they knew she had for a long while been endeavoring to get a tip out of Mr. Rigdon. Surely there was no breach of confidence in this.

So the Martindale family put what spare money they had in Onarora Copper, and each told his broker his reasons for doing so. Each broker had a number of speculators hanging about his office who were given the tip. The stock rose slowly and beautifully like a balloon sailing up toward the sky. Now and again it would fall back a few thousand shares being thrown upon the market.

By and by these sales grew smaller, and for some time the stock ceased to be offered. Miss Martindale asked Mr. Rigdon if it were not time to sell. He replied, "Not yet." And the stock went higher. Then suddenly it began to tumble. Every one who had been speculating on the Rigdon tip began to get "from under" except the Martindale family. When Onarora had sunk to the price they paid for it Miss Martindale sent for Mr. Rigdon and asked him if the boom was over.

Miss Martindale looked appalled. "I supposed," she said coldly, "that you were to let me know when to sell as well as to buy."

"That would not have accorded with my plans. I told you when to buy, and you told others. I knew you would and that your tips to others would put up the stock. If I had told you when to sell it would have spoiled my scheme."

"In other words, you have used me to your own advantage. You have not only disappointed me, but you have induced me to disappoint others."

"How have I induced you to disappoint others?"

"Why, they knew I bought the stock and surmised that I did so by your advice."

"And you did not tell them the secret. Well, you had no occasion to tell them. I believe that, in all, you and your family hold 3,000 shares. Am I right?"

"Yes, are."

Miss Martindale stood looking at Mr. Rigdon with astonishment, the cold look on her face breaking into a smile. Then she put out her hand. Mr. Rigdon improved the opportunity by putting the other hand around her waist and, drawing her to him, kissed her, at the same time proposing a new deal by which she should always profit by his operations.

Songs of the Balkans.

The part played by Balkan song in keeping fresh the hatred of the Christians against the Turks in the peninsula has been very great. Popular poetry in the Balkans has ended by creating one unique hero, Marka Kraljevitich. He is a great warrior, combining in his own person the most notable qualities of William Tell, the Cid, Don Quixote and Pantagruel. He is continually deceiving the Turk by all manner of disreputable stratagems and always justifies the means by success. Marka is a great feudal lord, and he spends his time in challenging Turks to single combat. Hero-like, his successes are prodigious.

Auction Room Curiosities.

Everything, it is said, comes into the London auction room sooner or later, and the list of curiosities that have been sold in the past is curious. Among them have been locks of Nelson's and Wellington's hair, the head of a Peruvian Indian, a human skull no bigger than a walnut—that of a dwarf found in the interior of Mexico—"Oom Paul's" hat, a curious, greasy, battered headgear that fetched $120, and the blue silk vest which Charles I. wore at his execution, which was purchased for $1,000.—New York Sun.

THE OLD MAN'S STRANGE STORY

Weird Visitor Quiets Levity of a Dinner Party.

A number of us were sitting in a restaurant. The dinner was over, and we were enjoying coffee and cigars. We fell to talking about death and from that to joking about our own probable exits from the world. Suddenly a man sitting at a neighboring table, with his back to us, turned and faced us. I shall never forget his face or the expression it wore. It was the oldest face I ever saw.

Had he really announced the fact the effect could scarcely have been greater. A cold chill passed over every one of us.

"Was I there?" The stranger laughed, a low, singular laugh, unlike any I had ever heard before, a laugh that had I given way to my feelings would have set my teeth to chattering. "Yes; I was on hand," he went on. "I was standing near a party of young officers who were talking upon the very subject you have been discussing. They were all boys, nothing but boys, to whom death looked farther off than the starry firmament. They were Lieutenant Brice of the cavalry, Pierce of the artillery and Skidmore of the staff. They were making a pool to be divided between the survivors or survivor after the battle. The fools didn't believe any of them would be killed. Were there not old generals and colonels in the service who had fought battles unscathed? They forgot the many who had fallen; they forgot that under the doctrine of probabilities one or more of them would be killed or at least wounded; they forgot that death is on every battlefield and does not like to be laughed at."

"An order was sent to the cavalry to charge. Seeing them making ready, I joined them and rode directly behind Brice. We were met by a terrific fire of what in those days they called 'grape and canister.'"

"Here were two of these young gamblers with death who were already worsted. The third, Skidmore, received an order to ride from left to right of the line of battle to carry an order. Disdaining to go behind, he went between the opposing forces. It was a hot fire he was riding through, but he seemed to care little for it. Men had gone through just such dangers before, and so would he. His horse, wildly frightened, was plunging, and, stumbling, it fell. Skidmore was thrown, but, rising, pulled the horse to its feet by the bridle reins, mounted and was about to ride on when I touched him on the shoulder. A cannon ball shrieked by and took him with it, a mutilated mass. Well, I laughed."

"Laughed!" exclaimed every horror-stricken man.

"Yes, gentlemen. Why not? Had not these foolish fellows laughed at death? Had they not sported with the all powerful specter, and that on the very verge of one of his carnivals?"

There was something so terrible in the speaker's wrath that every one of us—every one except Baxter, the old man of our party—shrank back.

"Who is this Death," said Baxter contemptuously, "of whom we must all speak so gingerly? The very certainty of his coming takes away from our terror of him, and if we do fear him we surely do not respect him. He comes into families and separates husband and wife, parents and children. If he does not come early he will surely come late, when we have exhausted life's pleasures, comforts, attachments, hopes. Then we must live on waiting for him. A fig for your Death, I say!"

The stranger who had been so flip-pant suddenly quieted. He cast a look at Baxter, who returned his glance calmly and, rising from his seat, said: "Pardon me, gentlemen, for interrupting your amusement. Death loves to get his clutches on those who fear him. When he seizes upon such as you," looking at Baxter, "it is like a huntsman shooting a stag in its sleep."

The old man who had met his match in an old man turned and strode out of the restaurant. While his going was a relief, it was not possible for us soon to recover from the influence he had exerted over us. We sat for some time, each silently meditating on the strange experience. Then some one said:

There was no answer except that which each of us gave for himself.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only Constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circular and testimonials. Address, F. J. ## Love In the Stock Market

About the close of the last century, when shares on the stock market were rising and falling like the waves of the sea under a storm, James Rigdon was for a time a power in Wall street. When it was reported that Rigdon was selling a stock everybody rushed to sell. When he bought the price would rise like the thermometer on a July morning.

Rigdon was a bachelor, and as soon as it became known among his women friends that he knew what stocks were going up and what were going down he received more attention than the handsomest man in New York. One of these ladies, Miss Martindale, he wished to claim as his own, but despite all he could do he couldn't find out whether she had any use for him other than to learn how to make money in stocks.

One evening while with her she imparted him to give her a tip on some stock that was about to be "put up." He explained to her that when he boomed a stock, if it were known that he was booming it, it would rise in value, but the trouble was that, when he wished to unload, the moment it was known that he had begun to sell, down would go the market and he would be left with a lot of "undigested securities" on his hands. He was about to put up the market price on a certain stock, but he could not take her into his scheme, for if it were known that she was buying and selling by his advice it would result disastrously for him.

"But I won't tell," she said. "Can I rely on you?"

"Certainly."

"Very well. Buy Onorora Copper. It is selling at 7 cents a share."

"How awfully kind of you!"

"I can rely on you?"

"Surely."

She gave him a special pressure when he left her and, running to the telephone, ordered him to purchase 1,000 shares of Onorora Copper. He did so without disturbing the market price of the stock half a point. Then she fell to thinking that her father and her brother and her sister would be delighted to participate in her good fortune, so she told them she had bought Onorora. There was no need for them to ask her why, because they knew she had for a long while been endeavoring to get a tip out of Mr. Rigdon. Surely there was no breach of confidence in this.

So the Martindale family put what spare money they had in Onorora Copper, and each told his broker his reasons for doing so. Each broker had a number of speculators hanging about his office who were given the tip. The stock rose slowly and beautifully like a balloon sailing up toward the sky. Now and again it would fall back, a few thousand shares being thrown upon the market.

By and by these sales grew smaller, and for some time the stock ceased to be offered. Miss Martindale asked Mr. Rigdon if it were not time to sell. He replied, "Not yet." And the stock went higher. Then suddenly it began to tumble. Every one who had been speculating on the Rigdon tip began to get "from under" except the Martindale family. When Onorora had sunk to the price they paid for it Miss Martindale sent for Mr. Rigdon and asked him if the boom was over.

Miss Martindale looked appalled. "I supposed," she said coldly, "that you were to let me know when to sell as well as to buy."

"That would not have accorded with my plans. I told you when to buy, and you told others. I knew you would and that your tips to others would put up the stock. If I had told you when to sell it would have spoiled my scheme."

"How have I induced you to disappoint others?"

"And you did not tell them the secret. Well, you had no occasion to tell them. I believe that, in all, you and your family hold 3,000 shares. Am I right?"

"Yes, are."

Miss Martindale stood looking at Mr. Rigdon with astonishment, the cold look on her face breaking into a smile. Then she put out her hand. Mr. Rigdon improved the opportunity by putting the other hand around her waist and, drawing her to him, kissed her, at the same time proposing a new deal by which she should always profit by his operations.

FIRM WIRE FASTENING.

How to Attach Heavy Guy Wire to Smooth Iron Pipe.

Many wireless telegraph amateurs have experienced great difficulty in trying to attach the heavy guy wires firmly to the smooth galvanized iron pipe mast which is frequently employed as a support for the aerial wires, writes H. Klatz in the Scientific American. In order to preserve the full

The writer recently found himself up against the same problem and solved it in the following manner: The guy wire was first wound three times around the end of an iron bolt near the head, then twice around the pipe and then three times around the bolt again at the other end. The nut was then tightened up slightly so as to hold the wire in position while the other ends were anchored, and when this had been done it was screwed up tightly and the projecting end of the bolt cut off.

Trouble is often experienced in gluing sandpaper and emery cloth on the disk of a grinder so it will stick until it wears out. The following method will give good results in making the abrasive disk adhere to the entire surface of the metal disk: Apply a thin coat of common hot glue or liquid glass on both the emery cloth and the disk. Lay two layers of cotton batting or some other soft and yielding material on a perfectly flat surface. Place the disk on this with the abrasive side of the cloth or paper facing the padding material and lay some heavy weights on the disk to give the necessary pressure, fifty pounds usually being sufficient. The padding will give a uniform pressure and make the contact perfect over the entire surface.

Oxidizing German Silver.

German silver does not oxidize with the usual immersion dips, such as liver of sulphur, says the Metal Industry. It is customary to copperplate the German silver for a short time, then oxidize in a cold solution consisting of one gallon of water, one ounce of liver of sulphur and one-sixteenth ounce of ammonia.

This will produce a black tone. If the finish is to show more of a gun metal tone the oxidized surface should be scratched brushed after the articles have been washed and dried out.

Fiber Washers.

Fiber washers should never be used in the fuel line or in any part of the motor where gasoline in its liquid state is liable to rest upon them. The action of gasoline upon the fiber washer has a tendency to make the motor run sluggishly by forming a deposit, and lead washers should always be used in such instances.
